How does the time pass to a man and how does it pass to a woman?

Time would be the distance between two moments, a period of time.

For some it passes faster, for others slower.

But together it creates an impulsive balance.

Time also has a category which reflects the attitude to the present, past and future.

When two people have a challenge ahead – to be separated for a specific period of time, they tend to long for each other because it is the space that separates them, not time.

Space – the main form of existence of matter – along with time, which characterises the distribution and interaction of objects.

I chose the thin paper and Indian ink, because I wanted to find a sense of fragility, which arises when airing old things. Work consists of 13 pieces, which allows me to dictate the pleasant composition. In the middle of work is a puzzle, which consists of 13 parts. Each part is 9x9 cm.
